"LET THE CHILDREN COME UNTO ME"

THE mountains and hills of Tonopah reverberated a glad acclaim at sundown yesterday. From the heart and soul of every child went up a prayer of thanksgiving for the happiness that was theirs for twenty-four full hours. Here amid sordid surroundings, with every bush, hill, mound, or mountain, and even atmosphere painted in gayest hues, with every human being intent on one thing, the amassing of wealth, it is strange wonder that the kiddies were so bountifully remembered yesterday? It was surely their day from start to finish. For the nonce the rich and the poor halted, forgot their greedy and insatiable thirst for the gold and silver they are so assiduously digging from the bowels of the earth. Attention was turned to the little ones. The celebration was for them and the drab atmosphere of their desert surroundings was tintured with a radiance that will not be forgotten for many months to come. Patriotism was the excuse, but down deep in the hearts of every citizen was this soulful desire to see every mother and every child happy the livelong Fourth of July. And they were. They had ice cream till they cried enough. They had balloons of the lightest and airiest type. They had everlasting suckers that would last a week or more and stick closer than any friend ever dared.

Plenty of lemonade, of cakes and good things and then all the fun on the side witnessing the sports till tired feet, aching bodies and weary eyes welcomed nightfall, when the brilliant display of fireworks crowned the day before the sandman bade them listen to his lullaby.

Surely it was the true dignity of manhood, the soulful inspiration of humanity, which actuated this thought of creating a new feature in the patriotic celebration, the thought of wives, mothers and babies.

GODDLING CONVICTS

It is nice to be a convict in Nevada, if one is to infer anything from the extensive advertising placed with daily papers inviting everybody to be the guests of the management in celebrating the glorious Fourth with a barbecue. D. S. Dickerson, the warden, grows hilarious over the happy prospect of drawing a large and enthusiastic crowd, since he indulges in the following prosperity story occupying a four inch double column space in several daily papers of Carson City, Reno and Virginia City. "Just a jolly good time for everybody. Barbecued beef, barbecued mutton, barbecued pork and barbecued beans. Come and see what is being done at the farm." There is a wholesome spirit of hospitality ringing throughout the detailed program of the observances, which concludes with the urgent invitation, "Everybody Welcome." This is scarcely appropriate for a prison that is congested, with every inch of space at a premium, but at the best it is the kind of hospitality that does not appeal to the average law abiding citizen. The invitation recalls the story told of a pacifist and automobile builder of Detroit who employs some tens of thousands in his factories. He is an ardent reformer and takes a practical view of life, to the end that all released convicts are assured of a good job in his service as soon as they come out of penitentiary. The scale of wages is five dollars a day, or about 40 per cent higher than the regular wages paid in Detroit for the same class of work. Under the circumstances, honest, law abiding citizens are anxious to gain admittance to the Detroit shops, but report goes that the number of ex-cons is so great that vacancies cannot be found for ordinary applicants. The story goes that an old time resident and taxpayer of Detroit made fruitless efforts to gain recognition at the employment bureau, but was turned down time and time again with the information that there was no room. After pondering over his numerous rejections the honest applicant stood by the gate watching the string of undesirables and then, turning to another unsuccessful applicant, he asked: "I wonder what crime we will have to commit to get work?"

The sentiment expresses a lot of wisdom. The honest man finds himself discriminated against by faddists who run to the extreme of seeking notoriety through courting the acquaintance of those whose past puts them under the ban of society. This does not imply that the man who has paid the penalty for what may have been a single error of youth should be forever ostracised and prevented from earning an honest livelihood, but it does mean that a man trying to help the fallen should not be encouraged to penalize the man and family who have always maintained a straightforward course and acquitted themselves of every obligation of good citizenship. There is an excess of what may be termed emotional insanity in dealing with inmates of prisons who have been advanced to the privileged class where their lot is frequently the envy of those who are compelled to toil for a scant living.

The administration at Carson City has been devising ways and means to compel taxpayers to increase the amount of the taxes belonging to the state for the reason that, under the fixed levy, it is impossible to make both ends meet. If the remainder of the state is to furnish additional funds for the entertainment of prisoners it might be well to solicit an expression of opinion from taxpayers, as it is a matter of fact that some of those who have not served terms in the penitentiary are rather hard pressed for the wherewith to defray their honest debts.

A joy in thirsty weather

You will want plenty of ice and a little good tea. Be sure of the tea! Schilling's Tea, ICED, has all the refreshing charm of Schilling's Tea, HOT—only difference is temperature. But—there are four distinct taste-types of our tea, and you won't be tea-happy 'til you get the kind that just exactly suits you. So let us send you the Taste-packet, which contains four parchment envelopes of Schilling's Tea—Japan, English Breakfast, Ceylon, Oolong. Then you can make your own tests.

Mailed promptly on receipt of 10 cents (stamps or coin). Address: A Schilling & Company 333 Second Street, San Francisco

Schilling's Best

Motor oil made from asphalt-base crude gives best lubrication with least carbon.

Such is the testimony of motorists and experts alike. As Lieut. Bryan, U.S. N., puts it: "Oil made from the asphalt-base crudes have shown themselves to be much better adapted to motor cylinders, as far as their carbon-forming proclivities are concerned, than are paraffine-base Pennsylvania oils." Zerolene is scientifically refined from selected California crude—asphalt-base—not only made from the right crude but made right. Dealers everywhere and at service stations and agencies of the Standard Oil Company.
